

GROUP FACILITATION TRAINING INTERMEDIATE - 2019

with
Fay Lilian

WHANGAREI: Thursday 14 March

WELLINGTON: Monday 25 March

AUCKLAND: Wed-Thur: 8-9 May

Now offered in Wellington as well as Whangarei and Auckland, this experiential training is highly suitable for people who have already gained basic facilitation skills, through group experiences. It is for facilitators of therapeutic or psycho-educational groups, for tutors of adult education programmes or for any person interested in becoming an active leaderful participant of groups, who would like to extend their understanding of group life through knowledge of some key concepts and theory. When we view any group as a whole entity with predictable impulses, the way we work as leaders is enhanced.

Participants can expect to draw upon their own interests, concerns and experiences as group members or facilitators to strengthen their ability to recognise group life phases, learning styles, group themes, common challenges and possible interventions that might be made.

Action methods and playful practice together will be used to enhance theoretical and experiential learning. We will consider conscious and unconscious dynamics and the possible effects on group-life. We will practise processes that might be used to develop an equal partnership in co-facilitation.
